This is only provided as an example of a privacy policy specific to text messaging and is just a general framework. It is helpful for businesses who already have a privacy policy and do not wish to modify their existing privacy policy. A privacy policy specific to text messaging would be added as another link on the website alongside the existing privacy policy that does not address text messaging.

You may need to adjust wording based on your specific practices or legal requirements relevant to your business. HostMy is not a licensed law practice and is not conveying legal advice. You should consult an attorney before utilizing any portion of this document.
